Description

Play a board game. Turn off the TV and challenge the family to a board game. Introduce the kids to a classic like Chutes N Ladders or Monopoly, or try a newer one like Settlers of Catan that you can all learn together.

Learn a new language. Thanks to apps like DUOLINGO, BUSUU, BBC Languages, VOCABSUSHI, you can stretch your mental muscles wherever you are.

Watch a movie solo. Getting whatever snacks you want, hoarding the couch, and laughing or crying as loud as you want: Movies make an excellent date for one.

Have a online dance party at home and turn on some tunes.

Learn a dance. Download the JUST DANCE NOW, DANCING ELF, LEARN DANCE app or and challenge yourself to learn one of the trending dances everyone is doing.

Make a custom photo book. You don't need the talent of Picasso to create a memorable photo book. A variety of online services can help you collect your photos into a beautiful keepsake.

Work on your wish list. Go ahead, dream big for the next holiday. Put together a wish list of items (or experiences) you have your eye on, so you'll never be caught off guard.

Listen to a meditation video. When your mind starts to spiral, turn it inward. Mediation videos can easily guide you through mindful exercises and techniques to reach inner peace.

Clean out your closet. Go through your clothes to rediscover some old favs. If you haven't worn it in the past year, consider posting it on a clothing resale app so it can find a new home.

Put together an online puzzle. When you've got lots of time on your hands, get your hands busy. It'll take your mind off boredom, and completing a big puzzle feels great.

Build a fort. Kids know this already: The couch cushions or a few chairs and blankets make an awesome wonderland. Embrace your inner child, or let your kids show you the way.

Write a letter. In the age of text messages and FaceTime, we don't write out our feelings in long form. Get out some nice paper and spread some love to a friend or family member.

Watch a performance. Watch an online opera, ballet, or symphony.

Call your Best Friend: Best friends are always there to entertain you, no matter how far you are from them. Just call them up, and talk about all you want to. Don't worry, friends never get angry.

Clean your room: The best thing to do when you are bored alone, especially if you are a boy. As a boy, we don't think about cleanliness much but trust me; you will feel much happy and prouder than your mom after completing the task.

Create a video and upload online: You never know which video could go viral on the internet as YouTube is giving birth to stars these days and you could be one of them if you have something amazing to record.

Write a Weblog: Reading is good but so is writing and having a blog is a nice way to reach out to readers to talk about any topic. Who knows how good you become at it? Start today and see where it takes you.

Try free online mandalas books: If you have plenty of spare time on your hands, consider using it creatively by coloring some pages.

Learn a new skill: There is always something new to learn. No matter how much you know, or how many skills you possess, the sheer volume of knowledge and skills means that you will never know everything.
